

Terms of service

By signing up, the Member agrees:

- To use the site and functions to for its intended purpose only namely to share and source information and opinion and interact with members regarding the industry and its issues.
- That membership and right of admission is granted at the community administrator's discretion and subject to the Members continued compliance with the terms of service.
- Not to use the site to explicitly promote products or services unless a commercial right to do has been granted in writing by the community administrator.
- Not to create a fictional, false or fraudulent profile, nor pose as another member, nor post content under another members name or under a pseudonym or through a fictional membership of any description.
- Not to publish any content that is unlawful, copyright, defamatory, untruthful, hateful, profane, racist or morally, politically or religiously offensive to the general community.
- That membership to this community is made entirely at the members own risk. Accordingly the member agrees that the community owner and administrator will not be liable for any action or damages arising through the use of this site whatsoever.
- That any benefits or rewards may be withheld from a member in breach of the community code of conduct.
- Not to do anything to compromise the reput, privacy or security of the community site and/or the community owners, administrators or members nor use the privilege of a membership to do anything to harm the site, imitate the site or draw away members from the community.
- Not to use the site to solicit information or members for the distribution of unsolicited spam or to promote persons, products or services without explicit consent to do so, or use it for any other purpose in conflict with the intentions of the site or the members who join it.
- That the community owner and/or administrator operate the site entirely at their discretion and may modify its form or cease to host it at any time.
- The community owners will not be obliged to act against any party.
- That any material breach of these conditions may entitle the community administrator to delete any offending content and/or the member at the community administrators sole discretion.

Report any breach of the terms of service to info@designmind.co.za